Photographic Policies, Reproduction Rights, and Fees

The Badè Museum of Biblical Archaeology retains all reproduction rights for its photographic images, films, and sound recordings, unless they are already in the public domain. Professional photography or filming in museum areas may be permitted for a fee, and by arrangement with a minimum of two weeks notice. Photography within exhibit areas for personal use is permitted. Research photography of collections can be arranged under certain conditions. Images of museum objects are available for purchase, and limited permission to publish these images can be requested.

Reproduction Rights

Request for permission to publish a photograph supplied by the Museum must be made on the “Badè Museum of Biblical Archaeology Permission Request Form,” available on request and through the museum website: <http://bade.psr.edu>. Permission is granted for one-time use only. No reproduction fees are charged for non-profit or scholarly use, as determined by the Museum. Fees for reproduction rights for commercial use are in addition to fees for photographic services. Reproduction fees are payable on the date of publication. The Museum requests that, upon publication, two copies of the publication be furnished at no charge.

Credit and Copyright

Credit must be given whenever a museum photograph is reproduced. Credit should be given to the photographer, when identified. The credit must read “Courtesy of the Badè Museum, Pacific School of Religion”. The Museum reserves all rights to its photographic images.

Payment and Delivery

Payment is requested in advance. Please make checks payable to the Badè Museum, Pacific School of Religion. Service charges may be added for photographic work that requires moving objects in storage, special handling and/or conservation, orders with detailed technical specifications, materials requiring a special camera set-up, or special handling of archival photographic material. Please place orders well in advance and allow four to six weeks for each order. Museum personnel will search the files for all reasonable requests. Service charges may be added for requests that require extensive research time or for rush orders, if accepted.
